Brook Hollow Association, Inc., a Nebraska non-profit corporation, and Brook Hollow Condominium Property Regime, hereby amend their Master Deed, recorded in Deed Book 1656, Page 56, as follows:

1. Article 7(e) of the Master Deed of Brook Hollow Condominium Property Regime is deleted in its entirety and is hereby amended by replacing Article 7(e) to read as follows:

Nuisances; Annoyances; Hazards. The Board of Administrators shall have authority to resolve all disputes pertaining to practices which may constitute an annoyance or nuisance or health and safety hazard to owners or residents of the apartments located within the condominium regimes, which practices may interfere with the peaceful use and enjoyment of the owner or resident, or create a health and safety risk to owners or residents. The Board shall have exclusive authority to determine whether or not a given practice constitutes a nuisance, annoyance or health and safety hazard. Examples of a nuisance, annoyance or health and safety hazard include, but are not limited to the following: garage sales, parking overflows, unkempt and poorly maintained premises, public indecency, speeding, and property damage, on the premises. All portions of the property and the apartment shall be kept clean and sanitary and no use thereof shall be made which constitutes a violation of any laws, zoning ordinances, governmental regulations or regulation of the Association. In the event that the Board of Administrators determines that a practice constitutes a nuisance, annoyance, interference or health and safety hazard, the Board shall notify the offending party of such practice and instruct such offending party that such practice shall cease. In the event that such practice does not cease, the Board may notify the offending party in writing advising the offending party that a hearing will be held concerning the practice in question, and that the Board may, after such hearing, if determined that such practice did constitute a nuisance, annoyance, interference or health and safety hazard, impose a fine against the offending party not to exceed $200.00 for each incident. If the Board of Administrators does determine that a fine should be assessed against the offending party, the determination of the Board to assess such fine must be approved by the owners of a majority of the total basic value of the particular regime in which the offending party resides or in which the offending party committed such act or acts. If the owners of a majority of the total basic value of such regime in question do approve the assessment of such fine, and if the offending party fails to pay such fine, such fine may be assessed against the apartment owned by or occupied by the offending party and enforced as any other lien against the apartment.

2. From Article 7(g) of the Master Deed of Brook Hollow Condominium Regime, delete the following sentence, "provided that such changes shall not bind any then existing mortgage holders of record unless they likewise consent to such change in writing," and replace with the following sentence, "and such changes shall bind any then existing mortgage holders of record and any then existing residents."

3. The Amendment to the Master Deed was adopted by the Board of Administrators on July 29, 1997.

4. Written consent has been given by co-owners representing at least three-fourths of the total basic value of the condominium regime.

5. Except as above provided, said original Master Deed remains unchanged and in full force and effect.

Executed this 29 day of July, 1997.
